

INVITATION

An Energy Solutions Event: A Discussion with the Presidential Campaigns

Friday, May 23, 2008
10am – 11:30am
CSIS Conference Center
1800 K Street, NW

Energy security and climate change are pressing concerns for both the United States and the global community at large. The issues also overlap with significant foreign policy concerns. The CSIS Energy and National Security Program has designed the Energy Solutions Series to move the ongoing energy policy debate beyond a simple recitation of current obstacles and problems and into a more realistic examination and discussion of ideas, options and solutions that will lead to a more sustainable future.

Join us for this important discussion with senior representatives from the presidential campaigns on their energy policy and climate change positions.

To RSVP for this event, please email your name, affiliation and contact information to energy@csis.org with the subject line “RSVP 5/23 Energy Solutions Event”.

The Energy Solutions Series is made possible through generous support from Chevron.
